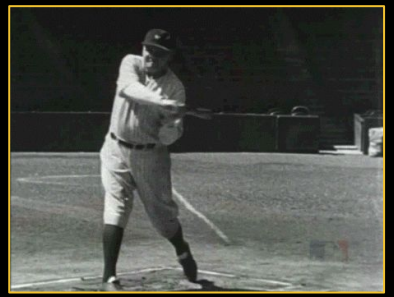
Sports in the 1920's



By Mason Magdaleno, Brayan Avila and Tristen Smith

Sports in the 1920's

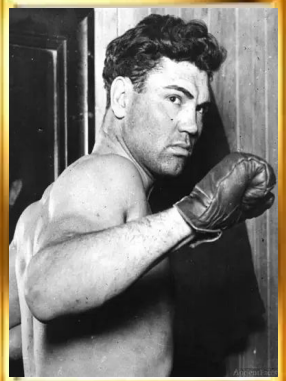
Sport Facts in 1920's

The 1920's were known as the Roaring twenties and was the time of many great athletes.

The most popular sports at the time were baseball, football, boxing, basketball, and golf. The first radio broadcast of a football game was in 1921 which significantly increased the popularity of sports and in 1929, the New York Yankees became the first sports team to put numbers on their uniforms. The 1920's was also the uprising of women's sports all around the world.

The first time the olympic flag was flown was in 1920 at the summer olympics in Antwerp, Belgium. In 1924, the Paris Olympics showcased international talent and further popularized sports like athletics, tennis, and swimming. In 1920 the NFL was founded and at the time it was called the APFA (American Professional Football Association)

Jack Dempsey

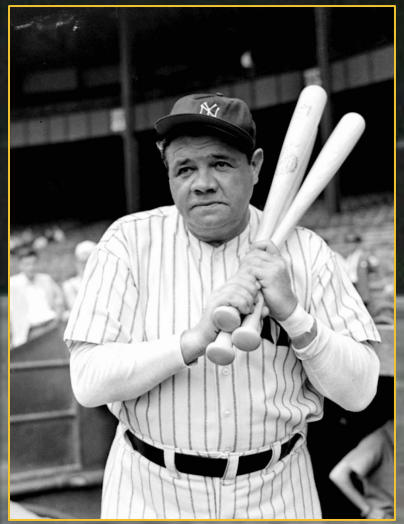


Before Mike Tyson, Muhammed Ali, there was Jack Dempsey. His real name is William Harrison Dempsey. He got his name Jack Dempsey from a boxing offer his brother gave him to fight in his place. William accepted and went to the ring as Jack Dempsey, winning the match and claiming his brother's name. Jack Dempsey was also one of Mike Tyson's idols growing up because of his ferocious fighting style and for his famous move the "Dempsey Roll."

Born on June 24, 1895, Jack Dempsey was a kid growing up in poverty in Manassa, Colorado. When he was in his teenage years, Jack would start fighting for bets to make money. He was influenced by his older brother during his childhood to box. In his early years he went by the name "kid blackie". Then in his teenage years, he would fight so aggressively his hometown named him "The Manassa Mauler".

He left home at 16 to fight in bars and gyms for money to pay rent. After he took over the name Jack Dempsey, he went on a 32 undefeated win streak and became a fan favorite in fights. In Jack Dempsey's career, he had an impressive fighting record of 62 wins 6 losses and 9 draws. He was honored to be in the International Boxing Hall of Fame in 1990.

Babe Ruth



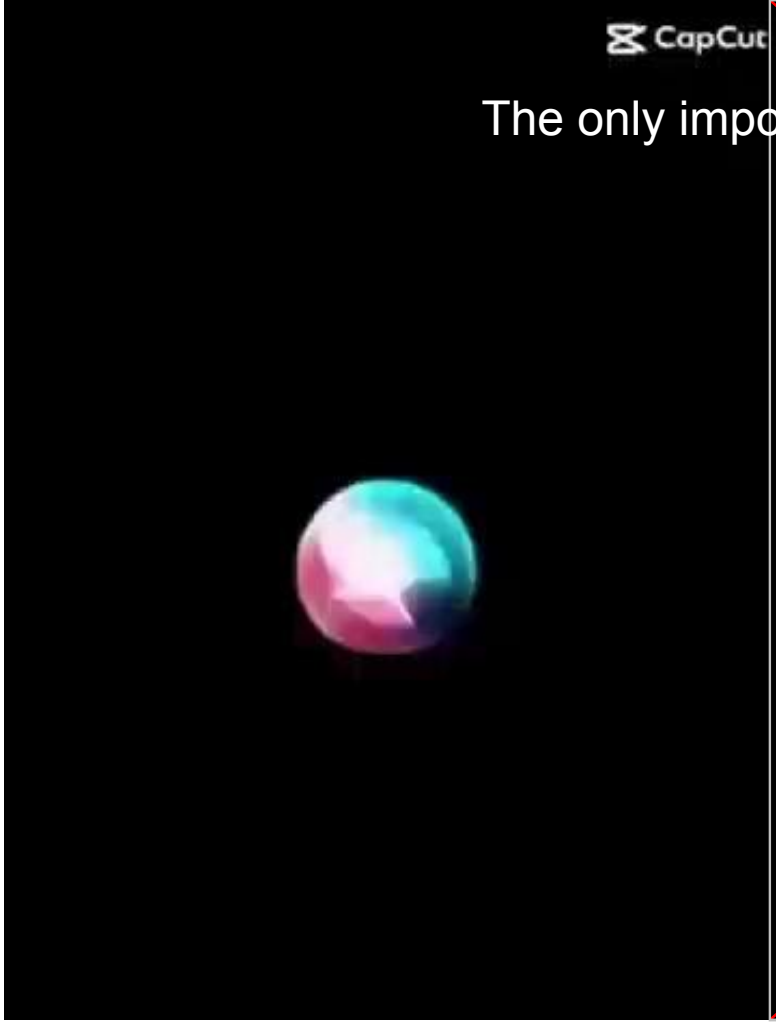
7x world series champion 🥇

Babe Ruth

George Herman Ruth Jr, Or babe ruth born in baltimore, Mary land, on February 6 1895 was introduced to baseball when he was sent to a industry school for boys. A mentor at the industry recognized his raw talent and taught him pitching hitting and fielding. Which lead to him becoming a young prodigy at baseball. By the age of 17 he signed to join the Baltimore Orioles. But he would quickly switch over to the Boston red socks.Becoming one of the best baseball players of all time and one of the most iconic athletes in history.

Babe Ruth gained his fame as a dominant left handed pitcher for the boston red socks. But he also become a legendary power hitting outfielder for the new york yankees. He finished his career with 714 home runs a .342 batting average. He also holds the world record for the highest slugging percentage at .690. alsp winning 7 world series. Babe Ruth was introduced to the hall of fame in 1939.

THE



CapCut
The only impo